On 5th June, under the guidance of Professor Deepak Tiwari, Principal SGC, Namchi celebrated the World Environment Day in the college premise. Accordingly, Department of Political Science staffs and students also actively participated and celebrated the World Environment Day. The activity started around 11am in the Departmental Garden where students from II, IV and VI Semester bought saplings from NCC volunteers who were directed to distribute among the various departments of the college. Students enthusiastically involved themselves in the various activities in the Garden such as cleaning, plantation drives, and maintenance work. Overall, the students i.e. both boys and girls of every semester took part in the programme, demonstrating their respect and concern for Mother Nature. Several seasonal plants and saplings were planted to enhance the beauty and greenery of the garden. It also encouraged teamwork, responsibility and to promote environmental awareness among students. Remembering the quotation, "Back to Nature at Last," and wishing everyone a Happy World Environment Day.
